Summer House Apartments

Lincoln University offers student housing options. Currently, the university provides affordable shared dormitory style housing in the city of Alameda. The rent is around $630 per person monthly. These apartments are maintained and furnished by Lincoln University. The monthly rent includes the utilities, high-speed internet and renter's insurance. The apartment complex offers controlled access, a pool, a business center, laundry facilities, and is located near a bus stop within a short commuting distance from Lincoln University. Some students choose to use housing websites and independent rental agencies to find apartments by themselves, share them with other student, or live with relatives and friends. The Department of Student Services posts notices about current rental options on a housing board and refers students to various sources of temporarily housing until students acquire their own accommodation.
