COURSE DESCRIPTION

The course objective is to prepare the student for business research. Emphasis is on practical work and not on memorizing or deriving formulas. Ethical aspects of research are featured. Students are expected to develop understanding and practice in research techniques, writing of short reports, use of statistical tools and presentation techniques, preparation of effective tables and diagrams, as well as footnotes and bibliographical references.

COURSE OBJECTIVES

- Develop a comprehensive understanding of business research methodologies.
- Cultivate practical skills in conducting ethical research.
- Enhance proficiency in writing concise and informative reports.
- Acquire competency in using statistical tools for data analysis.
- Master the art of creating effective presentations.
- Develop proficiency in designing and presenting tables, diagrams, footnotes, and bibliographical references.

COURSE STRUCTURE

The course will consist of lectures, practical exercises, case studies, and group discussions. Assignments and projects will be designed to reinforce theoretical concepts and practical skills. Guest speakers from relevant industries may be invited to share their experiences and insights.

Assessment: Students will be assessed through assignments, quizzes, presentations, and a final project. Evaluation will be based on the demonstration of understanding of research methodologies, application of ethical principles, quality of written reports, proficiency in statistical analysis, effectiveness of presentations, and overall mastery of course content.

EDUCATIONAL OBJECTIVES

The overarching aim of this course is to provide students with a foundational understanding of business research, encompassing both its overarching purpose and the methodologies underpinning it. Beyond this primary goal, secondary objectives are multifaceted. These include empowering students to proficiently identify pertinent research problems, articulate effective proposals, and adeptly orchestrate the design and execution of data collection processes.

While these objectives may seem straightforward on the surface, they necessitate a nuanced exploration of various academic disciplines, notably including measurement theory and statistics. This deeper engagement is imperative for students to develop the capacity to discern between research of high quality and that of lesser caliber.

Moreover, the course is structured to offer more than just a cursory overview of research processes, designs, and methods. It endeavors to cultivate a holistic comprehension of the technical intricacies inherent in business research methodology. By delving into these technical aspects, students will emerge equipped with the analytical acumen and methodological prowess required to navigate the complexities of conducting meaningful and impactful research within the realm of business studies.

INSTRUCTIONAL METHODS

Lecture method is combined with in-class activities of various kinds. Core concepts identified from the textbook will be augmented with supplementary sources (made available to students on the class website) and applied to the real-life situations during class activities.

This course contains a lot of theoretical and abstract ideas that can only be made practical through class activities and discussion. Therefore, class participation is essential to the success of the course.

Assignments and projects require students to actively use resources of the library. Detailed guide to business resources of the library as well as the description of Lincoln University approach to information literacy are available at the LU Library website (lincolnuca.libguides.com).

CLASS RULES

1. Class attendance is required.
2. Students are required to arrive to class on time. Showing up late disturbs the natural flow of the lecture and affects everyone's experience.
3. All in-class activities, exams, and projects must be completed and handed in on time.
4. All course materials are available to students on Canvas LMS: lincolnuca.instructure.com

ACADEMIC INTEGRITY

As member of Lincoln University community, students, faculty, and staff share a responsibility in maintaining this commitment. Academic dishonesty (e.g., instances of plagiarism, cheating, forgery, etc.) will not be tolerated and will result in unsatisfactory academic performance.

EXAMS

The exams (midterm and final) will consist of questions based on lectures, assigned chapters and supplementary reading as well as case studies / practical assignments. The final exam will be comprehensive.

GROUP/INDIVIDUAL PROJECT

Every student must prepare an individual research proposal.

The topic of the research proposal, possible data collection tools will be developed in course assignments. The project will culminate in an online video presentation during the penultimate class of the course. Students are expected to present their research proposals during the class using visual aids as well as submit a written report.
